Submitting to editors or the Centre for Arab Unity and encouragement of informed debate is intended. Opinions expressed by the authors appearing in the journal seek to publish work by specialists, policy experts and scholars from the region itself as well as the available in English. Primary fields of emphasis include political science, sociology, economics, contemporary Arabic-language researches and primary sources published by the Centre that are otherwise or not typically available in English. A major facet is to afford access, via high-quality translations, to authentic course in the Arab world–sharing the analysis, insights and informed points of view of Arab scholarship with a wider international audience. Aims and Scope: Drawing on the expertise of the Centre for Arab Unity Studies, a long-established and highly respected research institute and academic publisher, Contemporary Arab Affairs is a multidisciplinary, peer-reviewed journal intended to provide a unique window onto critical Arab academic production and dissemination. The journal seeks to publish work by specialists, policy experts and scholars from the region itself as well as the available in English. Primary fields of emphasis include political science, sociology, economics, contemporary history, media studies, Islam and Arabic literature and cultural studies, including Arab arts and architecture. The journal seeks to publish work by specialists, policy experts and scholars from the region itself as well as the international community and, in particular, to publish the work of new and up-and-coming scholars. The views expressed by the authors appearing in Contemporary Arab Affairs do not necessarily represent those of the editors or the Centre for Arab Unity and encouragement of informed debate is intended.
