California History is the top-flight historical journal of California. As such, it is committed to publishing well researched, thoughtfully argued, pieces that go well beyond a purely descriptive narrative. Published quarterly, the journal accepts electronic submissions year-round through the University of California Press website:

<http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/ucpress-ch>

SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

Length: Manuscripts, including endnotes, must not exceed 14,000 words.

Abstracts: All article submissions must be accompanied by an abstract no longer than 500 words.

Formatting: All text, including quotations and endnotes, should be prepared in double-spaced typescript according to The Chicago Manual of Style (University of Chicago Press). Because submissions are evaluated anonymously, the author's name should appear only on the title page. Please provide your full address, including e-mail, in all correspondence.

THE CALIFORNIA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The California Historical Society is a statewide membership-based organization designated by the Legislature as the state historical society. The California Historical Society inspires and empowers Californians to make the past a meaningful part of their contemporary lives.

CONTRIBUTORS

ROBERT CHERNY, professor emeritus at San Francisco State University, received his PhD from Columbia University (1972). He specializes in U.S. political history, 1877–1941, and the history of California and the West. He is the author of three books on U.S. politics, 1865–1925, and some thirty published essays; coauthor of two books on San Francisco history, a U.S. survey textbook, and a California history textbook; and coeditor of two anthologies. His most recent book is Victor Arnautoff and the Politics of Art (University of Illinois Press, 2017).

KEVIN WAITE is an assistant professor of history at Durham University in the U.K. His first book, a history of slavery and the Civil War in the American West, will be published by University of North Carolina Press next year. Alongside Sarah Barringer Gordon, he is codirector of a major National Endowment for the Humanities–funded project, “The Long Road to Freedom: Biddy Mason and the Making of Black Los Angeles.” He has written about California’s place in the controversy over Confederate monuments for the Los Angeles Times, the Washington Post, and the New Republic, among other popular publications.

CHRISTOPHER P. ESPINOSA is general manager of El Pueblo de Los Angeles Historical Monument.

CHARLES A. SEPULVEDA (TONGVA AND ACJACHEMEN) is an Assistant Professor at the University of Utah in the Department of Ethnic Studies. He earned his PhD in Ethnic Studies at the University of California, Riverside. His fields of research and teaching include California Indian history, mission studies, environmental studies, and Indigenous feminist studies. He is currently at work on his first book project, tentatively titled, Indigenous Nations v. Junípero Serra: Resisting the Spanish Imaginary.

CYNTHIA CULVER PRESCOTT is an associate professor of history at the University of North Dakota.

NANCY THOMPSON is professor emerita at California State University, East Bay.

EDURNE AROSTEGUI is a PhD candidate and a graduate research assistant in Basque Studies (History) at the University of Nevada, Reno. Her research analyzes the historiographical discourse on Basque women's migration to the American West, as well as providing an intersectional approach toward gender, labor, and ethnicity in migrant communities.

ALEX V. BARNARD is an assistant professor of sociology at New York University. His book Freegans: Diving into the Wealth of Food Waste in America (University of Minnesota Press, 2016) examines the politics and practices of "dumpster divers" in New York. His current research examines decision making in public psychiatric care in France and the United States.

GRAY BRECHIN is Project Scholar of the Living New Deal in the UC Berkeley Department of Geography. He is the author of Imperial San Francisco: Urban Power, Earthly Ruin.

MADDALENA MARINARI is associate professor of history at Gustavus Adolphus College. She has written extensively on immigration restriction, U.S. immigration policy, and immigrant mobilization. Her work has appeared in the Journal of Policy History, Journal of Gilded Age and Progressive Era, Social Science History, and Journal of American Ethnic History. Her book Unwanted: Italian And Jewish Mobilization Against Restrictive Immigration Laws, 1882–1965 explores Italian and Jewish mobilization against restrictive immigration laws from 1882 to 1965. Along with Maria Cristina Garcia and Madeline Hsu, she is one of the editors of A Nation of Immigrants Reconsidered: U.S. Society in an Age of Restriction, 1924–1965, an anthology on the impact of immigration restriction on the United States in the twentieth century.

ANA MUÑIZ is an assistant professor in the Department of Criminology, Law and Society at the University of California, Irvine. She is the author of Police, Power, and the Production of Racial Boundaries.

SHARON ANN MUSER is Associate Professor of History at Stockton University. She is author of Democratic Art: The New Deal's Influence on American Culture and the forthcoming Promised Lands: Hadassah Kaplan, Zionism, and the Making of American Jewish Women.

RACHEL LEE RUBIN is a professor of American studies at the University of Massachusetts Boston. Her books include Creative Activism: Conversations on Music, Film, Literature, and Other Radical Arts; Merle Haggard's "Okie from Muskogee"; and Well Met: Renaissance Faires and the American Counterculture. She appears regularly on Boston Public Radio.

EILEEN V. WALLIS is a professor of history at California State Polytechnic University, Pomona. She is the author of Earning Power: Women and Work in Los Angeles, 1880–1930 and coeditor of Chronicling California: A Primary Source Reader.

ROSANNE WELCH is executive director of the MFA program in TV and screenwriting at Stephens College. Her television credits include Beverly Hills 90210, Picket Fences, Nightline, and Touched by an Angel. Her publications include When Women Wrote Hollywood (2018), named runner-up for the Susan Koppelman Award for the best edited book in feminist studies; and Women in American History (2017), which the American Library Association named as an Outstanding Reference Source and included on its list of Best Historical Materials. Her 2016 TEDxCPP talk “The Importance of Having a Female Voice in the Room” is available on YouTube.
