California History is the top-flight historical journal of California. As such, it is committed to publishing well researched, thoughtfully argued, pieces that go well beyond a purely descriptive narrative. Published quarterly, the journal accepts electronic submissions year-round through the University of California Press website:

<http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/ucpress-ch>

SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

Length: Manuscripts, including endnotes, must not exceed 14,000 words.

Abstracts: All article submissions must be accompanied by an abstract no longer than 500 words.

Formatting: All text, including quotations and endnotes, should be prepared in double-spaced typescript according to The Chicago Manual of Style (University of Chicago Press). Because submissions are evaluated anonymously, the author's name should appear only on the title page. Please provide your full address, including e-mail, in all correspondence.

THE CALIFORNIA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The California Historical Society is a statewide membership-based organization designated by the Legislature as the state historical society. The California Historical Society inspires and empowers Californians to make the past a meaningful part of their contemporary lives.

CONTRIBUTORS

JOHN D. FAIR (PhD, Duke, 1970) is the author of seven books, including British Interparty Conferences: A Study of the Procedure of Conciliation in British Politics, 1867–1921 (Oxford University Press, 1980), Harold Temperley: A Scholar and Romantic in the Public Realm (University of Delaware Press, 1992), Muscle-town USA: Bob Hoffman and the Manly Culture of York Barbell (Pennsylvania State University Press, 1999), and Mr. America: The Tragic History of a Bodybuilding Icon (University of Texas Press, 2015). He retired as a professor of history from Auburn University at Montgomery (1997) and Georgia College & State University (2012). He is currently adjunct professor of kinesiology at the Stark Center for Physical Culture and Sports at the University of Texas, Austin.

JOSH FUNK, a stop-motion animator and filmmaker, is co-director of the animation festival Animation Chico. He teaches digital media and animation courses at California State University, Chico.

TONY KELSO is a professor of media and chair of the Media & Strategic Communication Department at Iona College. He takes an eclectic approach to scholarship, having produced publications in areas as diverse as advertising and religion, advertising and society, gender-nonconforming children in the media, politics and popular culture, and subscription television. He is author of The Social Impact of Advertising: Confessions of an (Ex-)Advertising Man (Rowman & Littlefield, 2018), coauthor of Encyclopedia of Politics, the Media, and Popular Culture (Greenwood, 2009), and coeditor of Mosh the Polls: Youth Voters, Popular Culture, and Democratic Engagement (Lexington, 2008). In his extensive former career, he worked as a professional advertising copywriter/producer.

JORGE N. LEAL is a cultural and urban historian whose research examines how transnational youth cultures have reshaped Southern California Latina/o/x communities in the late twentieth century. He received his bachelor's degree in journalism and history and his master's degree in history at California State University, Northridge, and earned his doctorate in U.S. history at the University of California, San Diego. Currently a postdoctoral scholar and teaching fellow in the Departments of History, American Studies, and Ethnicity at the University of Southern California, in fall 2020 he will join the faculty at UC Riverside as assistant professor of Mexican American and Chicano history.

MICHAEL F. MAGLIARI is a professor of history at California State University, Chico. In addition to two previous articles on Indian slavery in California, Magliari is the coauthor of John Bidwell and California: The Life and Writings of a Pioneer, 1841–1900 (Arthur H. Clark, 2003) and a coauthor of the fifth edition of The Elusive Eden: A New History of California (Waveland Press, 2020).

RICHARD J. ORSI is professor emeritus of history at California State University, East Bay. A graduate of Occidental College in Los Angeles, he received his PhD from the University of Wisconsin, Madison. He has published articles and book reviews in California History, Pacific Historian, Agricultural History, Journal of American History, American Historical Review, Pacific Historical Review, Western Historical Quarterly, Pacific Northwest Quarterly, and Oregon Historical Quarterly. He is the author of A List of References for the History of Agriculture in California (Agricultural History Center, UC Davis, 1974) and Sunset Limited: The Southern Pacific Railroad and the Development of the American West, 1850–1930 (University of California Press, 2005). He is editor emeritus of California History. He has coedited Yosemite and Sequoia: A Century of California National Parks (University of California Press, 1993), other anthologies of essays on historical themes of California, and the California History Sesquicentennial Series (1998–2003), four volumes of essays by leading scholars interpreting early California history, copublished by the University of California Press and the California Historical Society.

JOSHUA PADDISON is a senior lecturer in the Department of History at Texas State University. He is author of American Heathens: Religion, Race, and Reconstruction in California (University of California Press, 2012).

ERIC PORTER is a professor in the Departments of History and History of Consciousness at UC Santa Cruz, where he also holds appointments in the Critical Race and Ethnic Studies Program and the Music Department. He received his PhD in American culture from the University of Michigan. His most recent books are his collaboration with the photographer Lewis Watts, New Orleans Suite: Music and Culture in Transition (University of California Press, 2013), and Playing for Keeps: Improvisation in the Aftermath (Duke University Press, 2020), coedited with Daniel Fischlin.

ADAM SCHWARTZ is an associate professor in the School of Language, Culture, and Society at Oregon State University and a visiting researcher at the Center for Language, Interaction, and Culture at the University of California, Los Angeles. He studies secondary and postsecondary Spanish-language education in the United States, and in particular the ways in which culture, borders, foreignness, race, and privilege are constructed both inside and outside classroom spaces.

DAVID TAMAYO is a postdoctoral fellow at Santa Clara University, where he teaches Latin American history. He received his PhD in history from the University of California, Berkeley. He is writing a book on right-wing politics in twentieth-century Mexico.
