California History is the top-flight historical journal of California. As such, it is committed to publishing well researched, thoughtfully argued pieces that go well beyond a purely descriptive narrative. Published quarterly, CALIFORNIA HISTORY accepts electronic submissions year-round via email to: maryann.irwin@csueastbay.edu.

SUBMISSION GUIDELINES

Length: Manuscripts, including endnotes, must not exceed 14,000 words.

Abstracts: All article submissions must be accompanied by an abstract no longer than 500 words.

Formatting: All text, including quotations and endnotes, should be prepared in double-spaced typescript according to The Chicago Manual of Style (University of Chicago Press). Because submissions are evaluated anonymously, the author's name should appear only on the title page. Please provide your full address, including e-mail, in all correspondence.

THE CALIFORNIA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The California Historical Society is a statewide membership-based organization designated by the Legislature as the state historical society. The California Historical Society inspires and empowers Californians to make the past a meaningful part of their contemporary lives.

CONTRIBUTORS

VINCENT BROOK teaches at UCLA and has authored or edited ten books, several on Jewish issues in American media. These include Something Ain't Kosher Here: The Rise of the "Jewish" Sitcom (2003), Driven to Darkness: Jewish Émigré Directors and the Rise of Film Noir (2009), and a memoir based on his German-Jewish refugee parents' experiences, All About Eva: A Memoir of Holocaust Survivors, with a Hollywood Twist (forthcoming, 2021).

M. BLAKE BUTLER is a PhD candidate at Western University in London, Ontario, Canada. He earned his undergraduate degree at Queen's University and his master's degree at the University of Victoria. This article is based on research from his master's thesis. His current research explores how natural and human factors shaped Canadian experiences with winter in the twentieth century.

ROBERT W. CHERNY is professor emeritus of history at San Francisco State University. His work on California history includes San Francisco, 1865–1932: Politics, Power, and Urban Development (1986, with coauthor William Issel), Competing Visions: A History of California (2nd ed., 2013, with coauthors Richard Griswold del Castillo and Gretchen Lemke-Santangelo), California Women and Politics (2011, with coeditors Mary Ann Irwin and Ann Marie Wilson), Victor Arnautoff and the Politics of Art (2017), more than twenty published essays, and a forthcoming biography of Harry Bridges.

KERRY GOLDMANN is a lecturer and the associate director of graduate studies in the Department of History, University of North Texas. She received her PhD in the history of ideas from the University of Texas at Dallas in 2020 and has taught classes on African American history and culture, Jewish American history, and LGBTQ performance. Her article “The Complexity of Teaching Play Analysis” was published in Texas Theatre Journal. Her chapter on Hamilton: An American Musical and decolonizing historical memory will appear in a forthcoming edited volume from Vernon Press. She received the 2019 University of Texas at Dallas Office of Graduate Education Dissertation Research Award, which facilitated archival research in California for her dissertation.

ANDREW L. JOHNS is an associate professor of history at Brigham Young University and the David M. Kennedy Center for International Studies. He is the author or editor of six books, including, most recently, The Price of Loyalty: Hubert Humphrey’s Vietnam Conflict (2020).

CÉSAR LÓPEZ is professor and chair of the Department of Chicana and Chicano Studies at San Diego Mesa College. He received his bachelor’s degree in political science with a minor in English at the University of Southern California and his MA and PhD in ethnic studies from the University of California at Berkeley. His current research interests center on the connections between comparative racial and ethnic studies, Chicana/o studies, and student activism in the late twentieth and early twenty-first centuries.

MICHAEL F. MAGLIARI is a professor of history at California State University, Chico. Currently researching the history of Native American servitude in California during the gold rush and Civil War eras, he is coauthor (with Michael J. Gillis) of John Bidwell and California: The Life and Writings of a Pioneer, 1841–1900 (2003) and a coauthor of the new fifth edition of The Elusive Eden: A New History of California (2020).

MADDALENA MARINARI is an associate professor of history at Gustavus Adolphus College. She has written extensively on immigration restriction, U.S. immigration policy, and immigrant mobilization. She is the author of Unwanted: Italian And Jewish Mobilization Against Restrictive Immigration Laws, 1882–1965 (2020). She is coeditor, with Maria Cristina Garcia and Madeline Hsu, of A Nation of Immigrants Reconsidered: U.S. Society in an Age of Restriction, 1924–1965 (2019), an anthology on the impact of immigration restriction on the United States in the twentieth century.

AMANDA MARIE MARTINEZ is a PhD candidate in history at the University of California, Los Angeles, where she is completing a dissertation on race, politics, and the marketing practices of the country music industry from the 1970s through the 1990s. Her writing has also appeared in the Journal of Popular Music Studies. She is coeditor with Erika Lee of a forthcoming special issue of the Journal of American History on the centenaries of the passage of the Emergency Quota Act of 1921 and the Immigration Act of 1924.

RACHEL VANWIJEREN is an associate professor in the Department of Arts and Humanities at National University, Los Angeles.
