CONTENTS

- 259 New Uncertainties Enliven Russia's Election Season . . . . . Timothy J. Colton
The powers that be are almost certain to dominate the 2011 parliamentary and 2012 presidential balloting. But election victories will not suffice to sustain the system Vladimir Putin has erected.
- 266 Russia, the 360-Degree Regional Power . . . . . Andrew C. Kuchins
Moscow seeks to integrate with the West while defending "privileged interests" around its periphery—a complex challenge for a nation in strategic decline. Second in a series on regionalism around the world.
- 272 Russia's Post-Imperial Condition . . . . . Dmitri Trenin
Two decades after the collapse of the Soviet Union, the "post-Soviet space" no longer exists. Never again will Russia be an empire. The question now is: Can it be a great power?
- 277 Lukashenko's Game Is Up . . . . . Andrew Wilson
The Belarusian dictator has preserved power by securing subsidies for his supporters through a balancing game involving Russia and the West. This strategy has run its course.
- 283 The Caucasus in Limbo . . . . . Svante E. Cornell
Conflicts in the Caucasus are hardly frozen. Effects of the 2008 Georgia war linger, hostilities between Armenia and Azerbaijan could resume at any time, and insurgency is spreading in the North Caucasus.

PERSPECTIVE

- 290 Twenty Years Later, Russians' Rights Are Still Imperiled. . . . . Simon Cosgrove
As human rights defenders are murdered, the ruling elite continues to put itself above the law, showing allegiance to an old Russian—and Soviet—tradition.

BOOKS

- 294 A Front-Row Seat for the End of History. . . . . William W. Finan Jr.
A new book recounts the events of December 1991, when Mikhail Gorbachev resigned the presidency and the Soviet empire disappeared.

THE MONTH IN REVIEW

- 295 August 2011
An international chronology of events in August, country by country, day by day.
