February 2012

Vol. 111, No. 742

CONTENTS

- 43 Mexico's Big, Inherited Challenges . . . . . Pamela K. Starr
Felipe Calderón, when he leaves the presidency this year, will bequeath to his successor a host of troubles, from rampant drug violence to a sluggish economy to persistent corruption.
- 50 Grown in the Cone: South America's Soybean Boom . . . . . Mariano Turzi
In the past century America sought secure supplies of oil from the Middle East. Today, also with large ramifications, China wants secure supplies of South American soybeans.
- 56 The Shifting Landscape of Latin American Regionalism. . . . . Michael Shifter
As multilateral groupings—including some that exclude Washington—proliferate in the hemisphere, a new geopolitical topography is taking shape. Fourth in a series on evolving regionalism around the world.
- 62 Rio Tries Counterinsurgency . . . . . Robert Muggah and Albert Souza Mulli
Rio de Janeiro is trying to reclaim its crime-ridden slums with a pacification strategy strikingly similar to US efforts to win hearts and minds in Afghanistan.
- 67 Can Santos's Colombia Turn the Page? . . . . Sebastian Chaskel and Michael J. Bustamante
President Juan Manuel Santos is emphasizing reform, reconciliation, and poverty reduction, but his nation remains haunted by stark inequality and legacies of violence.

PERSPECTIVE

- 75 Chile's Middle Class Flexes Its Muscles . . . . . Patricio Navia
Large, diverse, and increasingly confident, the country's middle class is demanding that social policies be redesigned to fit its needs.

BOOKS

- 77 Salvation Stories . . . . . William W. Finan Jr.
A new book portrays 12 iconic Latin Americans—politicians, poets, revolutionaries—who sought to set right the wrongs of the past, often with ambiguous results.

THE MONTH IN REVIEW

- 79 December 2011
An international chronology of events in December, country by country, day by day.
