

CURRENT HISTORY

February 2013

Vol. 112, No. 751

CONTENTS

- 43 Colombia: Another 100 Years of Solitude? . . . . . James A. Robinson
Security in Colombia has improved dramatically in recent years; peace talks with rebels promise still more progress. Yet the structure of governance that spawned the chaos and violence remains in place.
- 49 Shifting Fortunes: Brazil and Mexico in a Transformed Region . . . . . Michael Shifter and Cameron Combs
Media have hyped a supposed competition between Mexico and Brazil for the region's "top spot." Meanwhile, the two share continuing challenges, including crime, inadequate infrastructure, and corruption.
- 56 Venezuela's Succession Crisis . . . . . Javier Corrales
Hugo Chávez's departure will add uncertainty to a legacy already cast into doubt by a weakened electoral coalition, a unified opposition, and massive state incompetence.
- 64 Latin America's Inequality Success Story. . . . . . Nora Lustig
Economic growth, broader educational access, and targeted antipoverty efforts have helped Argentina, Brazil, and Mexico reduce some of the world's most extreme inequality. Fifth in a series on inequality around the world.
- 70 Argentina's Democratic Decay . . . . . Hector E. Schamis
President Cristina Kirchner is one of several leaders in the region who emphasize egalitarianism and social justice while trying to intimidate independent media and judges.
- PERSPECTIVE
- 75 Reinvent the Summit of the Americas . . . . . Eric Farnsworth
Spoiler nations shouldn't be allowed to prevent progress on a common regional agenda among democracies willing to work with Washington.
- BOOKS
- 77 Haiti and the Crisis Caravan . . . . . William W. Finan Jr.
A new book meditates on Haiti before and since the 2010 earthquake, and about the do-gooders who visit, armed with "a kind of condescension filled with pity."
- THE MONTH IN REVIEW
- 79 December 2012
An international chronology of events in December 2012, country by country, day by day.