CONTENTS

- 339 ISIS and the Third Wave of Jihadism Fawaz A. Gerges
The Islamic State has taken the world by surprise with its lightning offensives in Iraq and Syria. Understanding the group requires exploring its roots in the global jihadist movement.
- 344 The Saudi Thermidor Frederic Wehrey
Dissatisfied with Washington, Riyadh has undertaken an activist strategy for restoring regional order in its own image—but its forceful interventions abroad mask a deep domestic malaise.
- 350 The Silent Victory of the Israeli Settlers' Movement Ami Pedahzur
Settlers have employed nonviolent tactics to penetrate the Israeli bureaucracy and change facts on the ground. Their fundamentalism, mirrored by Palestinian Islamists, has undermined hopes for peace.
- 356 Turkey at a Tipping Point Jenny White
For more than a decade, the Islamic-rooted ruling party has overseen deep changes in Turkish society. Now the prime minister's authoritarian ways threaten to tear open old wounds.
- 362 Kurdish Nationalism's Moment of Truth? Michael Eppel
The Kurds have long been one of the world's largest ethnic groups without a nation-state. The current turmoil in the Middle East may finally create the conditions for their independence. Third in a series on resurgent nationalism around the world.
- PERSPECTIVE
- 369 Obama's Middle East Headaches Augustus Richard Norton
Barack Obama has tried to reduce American involvement in the region, but events keep pulling him back in. Iraq and Syria are spiraling out of control, while allies only make things worse.
- BOOKS
- 372 Syria in the Abyss Max Weiss
A new book by journalist Reese Erlich offers a tour of the hell that Syria has become, and an explanation of how it got there. To bring peace, he argues, foreign intervention must end.
- THE MONTH IN REVIEW
- 374 October 2014
An international chronology of events in October, country by country, day by day.
- 375 2014 Current History Index
