CONTENTS

- 163 The Warming Business Climate in Africa . . . . . Scott Taylor
While African entrepreneurs still face a challenging environment, business is booming across much of the continent—and the spirit of capitalism has finally gained widespread acceptance.
- 170 Nigeria’s New Democratic Dawn? . . . . . Brandon Kendhammer
The nation’s first-ever electoral turnover of power is a watershed moment. But can the new president succeed in taking on the Boko Haram insurgency and a deeply rooted culture of corruption?
- 177 Surviving Ebola: The Epidemic . . . . . Mary H. Moran
and Political Legitimacy in Liberia
Liberian mistrust in government is so pervasive that many believed Ebola was a ploy to attract foreign aid. With national health infrastructure in short supply, communities turned inward for survival.
- 183 The International Criminal Court . . . . . Gabrielle Lynch
and the Making of a Kenyan President
Indicted for postelection violence, Uhuru Kenyatta joined forces with a codefendant from a rival ethnic group and won the presidency by framing the case in terms of national sovereignty.
- 189 The Varieties of Nationalism in Africa . . . . . Sara Rich Dorman
African independence struggles often led to nation-building narratives that glorified the new ruling party, but alternative voices continue to challenge official history. Eighth in a series on resurgent nationalism around the world.
- PERSPECTIVE
- 194 The Price of South Sudan’s Independence . . . . . Alex de Waal
Just a few years after becoming Africa’s newest nation, South Sudan is embroiled in civil war and faces bankruptcy despite its ample oil wealth, thanks to a cynical scramble for the spoils of power.
- BOOKS
- 197 Youth and the Future of the New South Africa . . . . . Hlonipha Mokoena
South Africa has reinvented itself repeatedly throughout its history. Now the post-apartheid “freedom generation” is searching for a way to realize its aspirations for a better life.
- THE MONTH IN REVIEW
- 200 March 2015
An international chronology of events in March, country by country, day by day.
