CONTENTS

- 203 New Spaces, New Controls:
China's Embryonic Public Sphere Sebastian Veg
Economic changes, the Internet, and global sinophone media are creating limited openings for critical Chinese voices. First in a series on public spheres around the world.
- 210 Resisting Chinese Influence:
Social Movements in Hong Kong and Taiwan Malte Philipp Kaeding
Students in Hong Kong and Taiwan have taken the lead in protesting against integration with the mainland and in defense of local civic values.
- 217 China's Bold Economic Statecraft Gregory T. Chin
Beijing is organizing new international financial institutions that could challenge the US-led economic order. But do they reflect a coherent strategic vision?
- 224 A Push to End Pacifism Tests Japanese Democracy Alexis Dudden
Prime Minister Shinzo Abe's efforts to neuter a constitutional ban on overseas military action have outraged many citizens who have a different view of the nation's history.
- 229 Is Vietnam on the Verge of Change? Jonathan D. London
Many Vietnamese are impatient with slowing growth, corruption, and a rigid party-state—and some are openly calling for a new direction.
- 236 Singapore at 50: The Post-Lee Kuan Yew Era Bridget Welsh
After the death of its founding father, Singapore's ruling party is struggling to find a more flexible and inclusive governance model.
- PERSPECTIVE
- 241 Repression, Resistance, and the Law in Post-Coup Thailand Tyrell Haberkorn
Since the May 2014 coup, the junta has leaned on the law to impose the worst repression in Thailand since the 1970s. Opposition activists are fighting back in the courts.
- BOOKS
- 244 Trans-Pacific Destiny Ellen D. Wu
A new book by historian Gordon H. Chang shows that China has long obsessed Americans, spurring on their expansionary and missionary impulses.
- FOUR MONTHS IN REVIEW
- 247 April–July 2015
An international chronology of events from April through July, country by country, day by day.
