CONTENTS

- 203 Can the US and China Coexist in Asia? Mark Beeson
China's insistent claims to maritime territory are testing American resolve to retain primacy in Asia. Their economic codependency may be the only effective restraint on a dangerous competition.
- 209 Migrant Workers' Fight for Rights in China Anita Chan
Laborers from China's rural hinterlands who have fueled the nation's economic ascent aren't as docile as they used to be. First in a series on labor relations around the world.
- 214 Can Democracy Cure Myanmar's Ethnic Conflicts? Mandy Sadan
Ending civil strife will require the nation's new leaders to overhaul the old nationalist ideology, which sought to impose a monolithic identity on a multiethnic population.
- 220 The Specter of Neo-Authoritarianism in the Philippines Mark R. Thompson
The election of tough-talking President Rodrigo Duterte is a consequence of liberal reformers' failure to fully deliver on their promises of good governance.
- 226 Democratic Backsliding and the Reach of ISIS in Southeast Asia Joshua Kurlantzick
Authoritarianism is resurgent in the region, which helps Islamic State recruiters, but a vibrant democracy has helped discredit violent extremists in Indonesia.
- 233 Abe's Faltering Efforts to Restart Japan Jeff Kingston
Prime Minister Shinzo Abe is struggling to carry out his bold plans for economic revitalization, while spending political capital on an unpopular security agenda.
- PERSPECTIVE
- 240 The Misconceived One-Child Policy Lives On Mei Fong
Rules governing the size of Chinese families remain in place—and even with a recent loosening of the policy, it may be too late to avert demographic decline.
- BOOKS
- 243 Mao's Ordinary People Patricia M. Thornton
The latest in a string of recent books on the Cultural Revolution focuses on the experience at the grass-roots, where violent upheaval unexpectedly ended in the return of capitalism.
- FOUR MONTHS IN REVIEW
- 247 April–July 2016
An international chronology of events from April through July, country by country, day by day.
