IN THIS ISSUE

BECAUSE

Canada is a most friendly neighbor for the American people. And our most important trading partner . . .

BECAUSE

We can learn a great deal about inter-cultural harmony from Canada . . .

BECAUSE

Canada is making a real contribution to New World culture and diplomacy.

And is, besides, a young giant with a tremendous potential for growth . . .

BECAUSE

Canada guards our northernmost frontier and stands as our staunch Ally . . .

We take great pleasure in this issue on CANADA, our first integrated and detailed study of this great nation to the North.

To most of you, the story of Canada's history and government will be new; the account of the compromises between French Canadian and Anglo-Canadian will be illuminating; the blueprint of Canada's economic potential will excite imagination. In the pages that follow, you will see Canada not as a British Dominion nor as an American satellite, but as a young Giant, Tomorrow's Great Power.
