Coming in 1956

After four issues on PROBLEMS OF AMERICAN DEMOCRACY, we shall turn our attention in 1956 to other parts of our troubled world. Plans already completed call for a January issue on THE SOVIET UNION and a February issue on DEMOCRACY IN INDIA; still in the planning stage is the March issue on TROUBLED AREAS OF THE WESTERN WORLD, which may be followed by an issue on AMERICAN FOREIGN RELATIONS in these areas.

In January, our roll of contributors includes:

FREDERICK L. SCHUMAN, Professor of Political Science at Williams College, writing on Russia's foreign policy toward the West;

WAYNE S. VUCINICH, Associate Professor of History at Stanford University, writing on Russia's policy in Eastern Europe and the Far East;

LAZAR VOLIN, of the United States Department of Agriculture, writing on Soviet Agriculture;

MICHAEL T. FLORINSKY, Associate Professor of Economics at Columbia University, writing on Soviet Industry;

KENT GEIGER, Professor of Sociology at Tufts University, writing on The New Soviet Society, and

N. S. TIMASHEFF, Professor of Sociology at Fordham University, writing on Soviet Education.

In February, we are hoping to bring you an issue on INDIA written largely by men living, studying and working in India because we believe that the Indians themselves are best able to interpret DEMOCRACY IN INDIA for Americans. Among our contributors are:

J. J. ANJARIA, of the Indian Planning Commission, writing on Industrial Planning in India;

GEORGE KURIYAN, Professor of Geography at the University of Madras, writing on Agricultural Planning in India;

P. KODANDA RAO, of the Servants of India Society, writing on Communalism in India, and

GEORGE LITTLE, Professor of Political Science at the University of Vermont, writing on the British Heritage.
