

CURRENT HISTORY

December 1998

Vol. 97, No. 623

CONTENTS

- Letters to the Editor 402
- India: The Nuclear Politics of Self-Esteem
India's nuclear tests may have been a politically expedient move for the country's ruling nationalist party, but they were also the product of years of territorial insecurity, strategic isolation, and "wounded cultural pride."
Pratap Bhanu Mehta 403
- The (Nuclear) Testing of Pakistan
For Pakistan, the bomb has brought hard times, political conflict, and the specter of international isolation. Has the fallout just begun?
Samina Ahmed 407
- Toward Nuclear Rollback in South Asia
Induce India and Pakistan to renounce their nuclear weapons programs? Not easy, but the cases of Argentina, Brazil, and South Africa show that it can be done.
Toby F. Dalton 412
- Asia and the "Magic" of the Marketplace
A look at the role mobile international capital flows have played in the Asian crisis and the "creative destruction" they have wrought.
Jeffrey A. Winters 418
- All in the Family:
Reforming Corporate Governance in East Asia
"Good governance" has become the rallying cry of those who would reform East Asia. But what is good in one historical and political context may not be in another.
Meredith Woo-Cumings 426
- Japan's Search for a New Path
The Japan that can say "no" needs to become the Japan that can say "yes" to political change and economic restructuring.
T. J. Pempel 431
- South Korea: Anatomy of a Crisis
Almost no other country in Asia has been hit as hard as South Korea. But is this a crisis of finance or of the real economy? of politics? ideology? the international order?
Ha-Joon Chang 437
- The Month in Review
An international chronology of events in October, country by country, day by day. 442
- Index
January–December 1998 446
- Perspectives
The Scientists Speak 448